Tri-Weekly Market Reports

COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Rallies followed yesterday's severe decline at the opening of the cotton market today. Liverpool was decidedly better than due and the local market opened firm at an advance of 14 to 22 points, October selling up to 22.97 and December to 22.54 on the call. This advance met considerable selling which included further southern hedging, but early offerings were absorbed on moderate setbacks by covering, trade buying and buying for Liverpool account. There was no change in weather or crop news. While there were more numerous reports that farmers were beginning to hold cotton from the market, private New Orleans advices claimed plenty of spots were being offered at present prices.

The market later worked up to 23.07 for October and 22.65 for December on continued covering and trade buying. The volume of business tapered off at the advance, however, and the improvement was not fully maintained as the higher prices encouraged further selling by the south. This was accompanied by private reports from Houston that spots were ordered freely in that market. Trading here was quiet around mid-day with prices showing reactions of 10 or 15 points from the best.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—The cotton market opened actively with liberal buying and short covering. Liverpool was 20 penny points better than due and reported prominent operators there heavy buyers. First trades locally showed gains of 44 points on October and December, the former trading at 22.30 and the latter at 22.45. After the first wave of buying was satisfied prices eased off almost as rapidly as they advanced and by the end of the first half hour of trading October had receded to 22.00 and December to 22.12 or 30 to 33 points down from the opening but still 11 to 14 points above the close of yesterday. Early reports claimed that some rain had fallen in the west.

The market encountered a good deal of selling during the morning and October eased off to 21.91 and December to 22.02, or 39 to 43 points down from the opening highs. There was more support accorded the market on the dips, however, due to a forecast for showery weather in the western belt and reports from many points in the south indicating that producers were holding back and refusing to sell at present prices. While the demand from domestic mills is slack there is a good inquiry for export. The market was steadier toward mid-session and rallied about 12 points from the lows of the morning. The weather map showed continued dry over practically the whole belt with temperatures decidedly lower in the central and eastern portions of the belt but warm in the west.

The market experienced a good rally in the early afternoon on reports of rather heavy rains in south more rain in the western belt. The near months advanced to within 3 to 7 points of the early highs, with October at 22.27c and December at 22.38c. January and March made new highs at 22.45c and 22.69c, respectively, or 34 to 35 points above the previous close. Many reports were received indicating the spread of the holding movements. Exports for the day totaled 13,075 bales.

GRAIN

BY GEORGE C. SCHNACKEL

(Special Leased Wire to the Journal—Copyright, 1924.)

CHICAGO (Thursday), Sept. 11.—Wheat closed at the top, 4 cents higher.

Reports of export business as high as 7,000,000 bushels, although 2,000,000 bushels only were confirmed stirred up bullish feeling late in the day. September, 1.27; December, 1.32 1-2; May, 1.39 to 1.36 7-8; July, 1.31 1-4.

Corn came to life in the last half hour and then covering by shorts caused a closing advance of 3 to 4 1-4 cents. September, 1.22; December, 1.17@1.17 1-2; May, 1.18 3-8; July, 1.18 1-4.

Oats were 1 1-2 to 1 5-8c higher. September, 49; December, 53 1-8 to 1-4; May, 57 3-8 to 1-2.

Lard closed 7 1-2 to 12 1-2c higher; ribs 10c higher and bellies 7 1-2 to 12 1-2c higher.

Local cash sales were 50,000 bushels wheat, 105,000 bushels of corn, 175,000 bushels of oats, 120,000 bushels of rye, all to exporters, and 10,000 bushels of barley to exporters.

Oats showed more pep today. The Canadian crop figures showed a reduction of 100,000,000 bushels from last year's yield and this had a tendency to make the trade forget the big domestic crop. Commission houses were good buyers and there was a broad demand from cash houses suggesting active business in cash oats for shipments overnight. Eastern houses sold. Hedging pressure was less heavy than late. Texas was bidding eastern Iowa 2 to 3 cents over the Chicago spot market for oats.

Corn was neglected. There was a little commission house buying at the start and later shorts covered on the strength in wheat. Cool, wet weather was shown all over the corn belt and this is anything but favorable for maturing the crop. A fear that snow that was falling in Wyoming would work eastward over the corn belt accompanied by lower temperatures caused some buying later in the session. Shipping demand was reported better.

Provisions were lower despite the strength in hogs and the firmness in corn. A feature was the hedging pressure from packers.

Showers Help Cotton Crop in This State; Too Dry Over Belt

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Crop and weather conditions in southern states during the week ending yesterday were summarized today by the department of agriculture as follows:

There was a reaction to cooler weather in the cotton belt after eight warm weeks in succession; in fact, prior to that just closed, there has been only one week with general subnormal temperatures in the south since the beginning of June. There was abundant sunshine during the week, which was favorable for harvest, and beneficial showers occurred in parts of the eastern belt. Little or no rains fell in the western portion, where droughty conditions continued.

Dry Weather Hurts

There was little change in the condition of cotton in Texas; progress continued very good in the extreme west and northwest and poor to fair elsewhere. Bolls are small, opening prematurely, and the lint short in the drier areas. It continued too dry in Oklahoma, where cotton deteriorated or made only slow progress and the general condition varies from poor to very good; picking was becoming general, but yields were mostly below expectations. There was likewise little or no change in the general outlook in Louisiana. Progress was fair to very good in Arkansas, except poor in the southern portion; plants are still blooming in the central and northern counties.

Further deterioration was noted in Mississippi and Alabama, though development was fairly good in parts of the latter state; there were further complaints of shedding and premature opening in both these states. There was some deterioration in Tennessee, but not general, with condition ranging from poor to very good.

Georgia Outlok Improved

Beneficial showers occurred in Georgia, which caused considerable improvement in the outlook, though there still was some shedding, with bolls small in much of the northern division. There was much shedding reported from South Carolina, with considerable deterioration in the eastern and southern portions. Cotton made fair progress and its condition continued very good in northern North Carolina, but the outlook is less favorable in the south, especially the southwest. Cool weather checked growth in Virginia, but conditions continued generally favorable in the more western states.

Favorable to Corn

Low temperatures were unfavorable for corn in the middle Atlantic area.

Favorable weather aided the rice harvest in Texas and the lower Mississippi valley.

Showers were beneficial for minor crops in the southwest, but sugar cane in Louisiana needed rain.

TENNESSEE—Very cool; moisture fairly satisfactory in east, but quite scarce in middle west. Some deterioration of cotton, but not general and crop varies from poor to very good; opening becoming general. Rains benefited corn locally, but drought generally severe on late crop. Late hay poor. Tobacco fair to very good and cutting well under way.

DETAILED REPORTS

Conditions by states follow:

NORTH CAROLINA—Week cool, especially nights, with some light rains. Cotton opening rapidly in some sections; progress fair and condition fair to very good in month, while progress and condition fair to poor in south; continued to deteriorate in southwest; much shedding in many counties. Tobacco giving fair to good results. Apples good.

SOUTH CAROLINA—Week cool, with drought somewhat relieved by rains. Condition of cotton rather poor generally; becoming very poor in eastern and southern counties with much shedding and premature opening. Intermediate and late corn and truck and pastures poor. Soil too hard for fall plowing.

GEORGIA—Beneficial showers, with more moderate temperatures, were generally favorable, though several counties still too dry. Cotton made considerable improvement; bolls are opening rapidly with picking and ginning under way in all sections; still some shedding and premature opening and bolls small in much of northern division.

FLORIDA—Cotton picking nearly finished locally; quality of lint good to excellent; ginning active. Large quantities of hay and corn harvested in good condition. Beneficial showers in all divisions, but more needed for sweet potatoes, seed beds, recently set truck, cane, citrus trees and ranges. Setting strawberry plants delayed and early planted slow growth due to dry, warm weather.

ALABAMA—Moderate temperatures with much needed beneficial rains, but mostly insufficient. Corn in most sections badly damaged by drought and failure locally. Truck, pastures and minor crops mostly poor, except where revived by rains. Opening and picking of cotton progressing rapidly in central and south; some shedding and considerable premature opening; progress ranges from deterioration to fair; condition mostly poor to fair.

MISSISSIPPI—Generally abundant sunshine, but cool with only light showers. Progress in picking cotton fair; plants deteriorated with stalks dying and many bolls opened prematurely. Corn deteriorated or made only poor progress; harvesting in south. Progress of cane, forage, gardens, potatoes and truck mostly poor.

TEXAS—Generally cool, with rains giving only transient relief. Too dry for fall plowing and pastures and feed crops generally need moisture. Rice yield good and harvest progressing rapidly. Progress and condition of cotton continue very good in extreme west and northwest and poor to fair elsewhere; bolls small and opening prematurely and lint short in dry areas; aside from extreme north, rain would harm bolls; insect damage generally light. Cotton picking and ginning progressing excellently, beginning even in extreme northwest. Amarillo: Condition of ranges and live stock fair to good, except range dry in southwest.

Sugar Market

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Raw sugar was firm and unchanged early today at 6.03 for Cuban, duty paid, with no sales reported.

Except for September, which held relatively steady, raw sugar futures were easier and at one time showed losses of 4 to 6 points due to realizing. Trade interests and houses with Cuban connections bought on the decline and rallies followed, with noon quotations 2 points higher on September and 1 to 2 points lower on later positions.

Refined was firm and unchanged at 7.25@7.30 for fine granulated.

Refined futures were nominal.

FENNER & BEANE COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 11.—The cotton market gave a better account of itself today in the face of much bearishness and considerable hedging and ended the day with a fair sized advance. A good Liverpool, spread of holding movement and probability of unneeded rains in Texas and Oklahoma overnight were the stimulating influences. Reports of easier spot basis and evidence that spot people were taking advantage of the bulges to hedge was the chief bearish argument, though slack mill demand played a part. Wires from every part of Texas, saying farmers were unwilling to accept present prices and were holding, attracted considerable attention and went a long ways toward offsetting reports of easier basis.

Reports of rains in southwest Texas and wires from other points in that state, say for the late buying, most of which appeared to be covering. Advancing grain was helpful. The general opinion was that rains at this time will be unfavorable, and they may change sentiment materially as well as the course of the market if they materialize.

YOUNG N. Y. SOCIETY MATRON PRESCRIBES DANCING TO END BOREDOM AMONG THE "400"

Mrs. Morgan Belmont who will take a position in the woman's clothing department of a big New York store. At left the society leader as she appeared in Griffith's "Way Down East," and in a socially posed picture.

Another Young Matron of "Upper Crust" Goes to Work to Escape the Inevitable Weariness of Doing Nothing

BY GENE COHN

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—If it keeps up the Social Register will have to issue a business directory as an appendix.

For the rebellion of the young ladies of the "400" against the routine of social life is spreading.

They want to mix business with bridge; toil with tea; ease with earning and selling with sailing.

They would melt the silver spoon with which they were born and turn the contents to practical purposes.

These rebellious young leaders of American society have concluded that every woman should have a practical vocation, whatever her wealth or social station.

They want to find out how the money that seems to come so easily is made.

Escapes Boredom

Just a short time ago it was Mrs. Morgan Belmont, one of the most noted and beautiful members of New York's "400." Soon she will take a position as style mentor in a big Fifth avenue store.

And now comes Mrs. Gloria Gould Bishop, the young and charming daughter of George Jay Gould, with the announcement that she will open a school for dancing this fall.

"If it were not for my dancing, I'm afraid things would be boring," frankly admitted this lithe young exponent of the classical dance.

It is no fad, she hastens to add. For ten years Gloria Gould studied with the famous Louis Chalif "in what became known as "the millionaire class."

"I am going to start with children's classes," she went on in outlining her aims. "I will teach them folk dancing. No, this will not be a class for the children of the rich. There are no social lines in art, as every one knows—or should. Only grace, rhythm, feeling and technique count, and some of our finest forms of dance expressions come from peasants—certainly they are the most natural and naive and whole-hearted in their dancing."

No "Reforms" Contemplated

"Don't you think society could learn a few things about grace? Do you intend to attempt any reforms in society dancing—so-called?" she was asked.

"I don't see why," she hesitated. "There are awkward squads at society functions, as elsewhere. But I believe in all forms of the dance. I shall not be a reformer—but a teacher. Later I shall probably have classes in society ballroom dancing."

"Will you try to make discoveries of unsung talent among the poor?" was the next question.

"I should love to discover some future Pavlowa. But you know parents. So many of them are convinced that their children are prodigies. They must have training—but I certainly shall look."

"Are you taking up this class to escape the much-discussed social boredom?" the interviewer concluded.

"Without my dancing I should be bored—most certainly. I'm quite sure I would. But I take it as an art, as well as a diversion," she admitted.

There is little or no affectation and a great deal of frank, girlish charm in this "business woman" of tomorrow. Artists predict a most successful business career.

Not First Rebellion

With Mrs. Morgan Belmont this is not the first rebellion. Four years ago she surprised society by going to work in the movies and taking a small part in Griffith's "Way Down East."

One of the best-dressed women of her set, she now will tell other women how to dress, and, it is predicted, the rush for advice will resemble a big bargain sale.

In taking this position Mrs. Belmont deserts her yachts and blooded horses and afternoon affairs.

But she wants to learn business from the inside.

She thinks women should have some business background. Thus far she has found time to rear two healthy youngsters and play her social roles as well.

Meanwhile, the circles of the "400" are filled with rumors of how a half dozen young leaders of wealthdom will undertake everything from selling automobiles to raising blooded dogs for market.

WORN SHIPS CAUSE U. S. GLOBE FLIERS TO AVOID ROCKIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—With [illegible] planes of the army world flight squadron now at Bolling field, the fliers settled down today for another two days' lay-over in the national capital under a revised schedule which will keep them here for participation in the Defense day test Friday.

In contrast to the heralded arrival of the planes of his two companion pilots here Friday, Lieutenant Erik Nelson unceremoniously dropped down in his plane New Orleans at Bolling field late yesterday. He flew it from Halethorpe, near Baltimore, where he was forced down in the flight from New York, without even any of the service men at the field knowing he was on the way. Going out from here to inspect work on the plane, he found it shipshape after the installation of a new motor, climbed aboard and flew in it himself so there would be no break of even a few miles in his record as pilot of the world circling craft.

Just before his arrival, the war department announced that at the request of Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, flight commander, the original trans-continental route for the fliers had been changed to avoid the high altitudes encountered along the air mail line from Chicago to Sacramento. Instead of taking this route to their terminus at Seattle the department announced an itinerary that will take the fliers over a southerly course down through Oklahoma and Texas after leaving Chicago.

The department explained in an announcement that, owing to the strain to which the planes have been subjected having "considerably reduced their efficiency," it would be unsafe for them to attempt to fly at an altitude of over 6,500 feet.

The fliers now are scheduled to leave Bolling field Saturday morning about 8 o'clock for Dayton, Ohio, where they probably will remain over Sunday.

The fliers, headed by Lieutenant Smith and accompanied by Major General Patrick, chief of the army air service, paid their respects today to General Pershing and all chiefs of branches of the general staff of the army.

"Yours has been a wonderful achievement, casting credit upon the army as a whole," General Pershing said, addressing them. "I wish you a continued success."

ZANNIE REALIZES HE MUST CROSS PACIFIC AT ONCE

TOKIO, Sept. 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Major Pedro Zanni, Argentine aviator, now on an air tour of the world today issued new instructions to Patrick Murphy, his advance man here, urging greater speed in making preparations for the Argentine's transpacific flight.

"Expense doesn't matter," said the aviator in a message from Hanoi, French Indo-China, where he is preparing to hop off in a new plane received after he damaged his former machine in a forced landing there some weeks ago.

Major Zanni asked Murphy to obtain the services of three fast merchant steamers equipped with radio to lay supplies in the transpacific route of the flight as far as Vancouver.

"Regardless of whether or not Japanese destroyers are sent to the Kurile Islands," Major Zanni's message said, "the most thorough preparations are necessary now to make up time lost through the Hanoi crash or else the lateness of the season when we must attempt the transpacific flight spells failure."
